DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Again, claim 4 is indefinite because the scope of the phrase “essentially no dry hop flavor components” is unknown. Specifically, it is unclear how much of said components are allowed to be present in the extracted hop solids.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-7 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vitzthum et al. (U.S. Pat. No. 4,104,409)(“Vitzthum”) in view of Klopper et al. (Abstract of Brauwissenschaft 1970 pp. 329-32)(“Klopper”).

Vitzthum teaches the production of an extract from hop solids that have been treated with carbon dioxide. The solids are extracted with water to produce an extract that contains hop tannin. (Col. 1, lines 49-53, col. 3, lines 8 to 51). Table 2 shows that the carbon dioxide extracted hop solids contain below the detection limit of alpha acids. Vitzthum does not teach adding the tannin extract by itself in the brewing process.

Klopper teaches the production of beer solely using a pure hop tannin extract. The use of this extract led to higher anthocyanogen and polyphenol levels and more intensive beer colors, to lower high-molecular protein contents, reduced foam stability and to improved colloidal stability. It would have been obvious to those of ordinary skill in the art to add the hop tannin of Vitzthum in the beer of Klopper for the effects taught by Klopper.

While Klopper and Vitzthum are silent as to when to add the tannin in the brewing process it would have been obvious to those of ordinary skill in the art to add it either before or after fermentation in order to obtain the disclosed results.

Finally, Applicants' attention is invited to In re Levin, 84 U.S.P.Q. 232 and the cases cited therein, which are considered in point in the fact situation of the instant case, and wherein the Court stated on page 234 as follows:

This court has taken the position that new recipes or formulas for cooking food which involve the addition or elimination of common ingredients, or for treating them in ways which differ from the former practice, do not amount to invention, merely because it is not disclosed that, in the constantly developing art of preparing food, no one else ever did the particular thing upon which the applicant asserts his right to a patent. In all such cases, there is nothing patentable unless the applicant by a proper showing further establishes a coaction or cooperative relationship between the selected ingredients which produces a new, unexpected, and useful function. In re Benjamin D. White, 17 C.C.P.A (Patents) 956, 39 F.2d 974, 5 U.S.P.Q. 267; In re Mason et al., 33 C.C.P.A. (Patents) 1144, 156 F.2d 189, 70 U.S.P.Q. 221.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
